Fancher, of that place.

It was announced that the pastor would return with his bride June 22. Extensive preparations were made to give them a hearty welcome home. A large tent was erected, music engaged, and a collation prepared by the women of the church. There was a crowd of friends at the railroad station to meet the happy couple. When the train rolled in, the pastor appeared alone. Instead of a happy bridegroom, the crowd met a man so changed in appear-

Many questions were asked, but Mr. Day replied that the marriage had not FOR SALE BY E.S. LEADBEATER & SONS taken place. The latter assertion he afterward denied, but there were several persons present who claimed the pastor did make the statement that the ceromony had not been performed. Rev. The young woman stoutly asserted that the ceremony had been performed in her father's house on the date set for it by Rev. H.S. Hull, of Canarsie. She contended that she would never live with her husband, and should endeavor to secure a separation from him. She spoke of him in bitter terms.

The morning after the ceremony sho told her mother she would not live with her husband. She would give no ex-planation to others. Miss Fancher's side of the case raised a commotion in pastor Day's church. He professed to be entirely ignorant of his wife's refusal to live with him.

The congregation determined to learn the secret of the trouble, and the two oldest members of the church were appointed a committee to visit Pound Ridge. The committee made the journey and returned, but no public statement has been made of the result of their trip. The feeling against the pastor gradually turned, and he was given to understand a short time ago hat his resignation would be accept
